

LOCAL BRIEFS.

Read THE TRIBUNE.
School begins next Monday.
Old papers for sale at this office, 5c per bundle.
Mrs. Maude Tomlinson, dress-making, over the Review office.
National encampment G. A. R. Cleveland, Ohio; tickets on sale Sept. 7-8, $21.10 round trip; return limit October 8 via Mo. Pac.
A. C. Cates' son Noland was kicked in the side by a horse yesterday afternoon and hurt quite seriously.
Elder Warnke is delivering an excellent course of lectures on scripture subjects at the Latter Day Saints church, this week.
Guido Jaeger is home from Greenville, Miss., visiting his family for a short time. He has put in a splendid system of water works in that enterprising southern city.
Don't fail to read THE TRIBUNE, and if you are not now a subscriber, come in and get your name on our list.
J. W. Wolverton shipped a large car load of hardware and household goods to Lawton, Okla., last Friday. He took Dillon Stevens along to help put up building and get goods in shape.
Mothers write us that they have solved the problem of keeping their children well. Give them Rocky Mountain Tea each week. A blessing to mother and child. Ask your druggist.
The recent county institute is said to have been the largest ever held. Certificates were issued as follows: 20 first, 34 second, and 64 third grade. Thirteen failed and 21 are not yet passed on.
The Christian Endeavor of the Presbyterian church entertained their friends at the home of Dr. Slater Wednesday evening. Ice cream and cake were served and a pleasant time enjoyed by all.
Last week I went about,
Full of trouble and of doubt.
Now I'm smiling and dance with delight.
I had some Rocky Mountain Tea last night. Ask your druggist.
Mrs. Anna Coates house with all its contents, was burned to the ground Monday night. The loss was total but she carried insurance with the Niagara Insurance Co., of New York, represented by Geo. P. Huckleby, and her loss will be adjusted promptly and satisfactorily.
A new firm has opened in our city, in an office adjoining THE TRIBUNE, and is now ready to do a land office business in real estate, loans and insurance. If you need a loan on your farm call and see them. If you want insurance, see them. If you want to sell your property call at their office. Prowell & Cook are selling the earth in chunks.

Marriage licenses were granted during the week to, M. F. Goodale, Kansas City; Laura E. Zilliox, Rockville; Sidney V. Elmore, Butler; Bertha Smith, Spruce; Albert Jones and Olivia Perry, Prairie City; Fred Shaw and Cory Mars, Amoret.

We took a run over to Foster last Friday in the interest of THE TRIBUNE, and in the course of our peregrinations around the city met that prince of good fellows, W. H. Clouse, always jolly and pleasant; Postmaster W. W. Russell, an efficient officer; W. R. Bell, a prosperous merchant; E. L. Stevens, the strong village blacksmith, a prototype of Longfellow's poem, and a number of other good men and true who read THE TRIBUNE and believe in the principles of the party they so loyally support. Foster is a good town and as the coal mining is further developed will improve more and more.

Postmaster Martin is a theoretical as well as a practical farmer. He has more theories than you will find in the books and he has had practice enough to make farming a success. He spent many years in Iowa, Nebraska and the Dakotas in the actual work of a practical agriculturist. In his Labor Day speech last Monday he gave the people the benefit of his theory for raising a good crop of potatoes notwithstanding a protracted drought. Here it is. Plant your potatoes in rows far enough apart to admit a row of good strong onions between and let them grow with the potatoes. If this is done, the strength of the onions will get in the eyes of the potatoes and the result will be ample irrigation to produce a splendid crop. If you don't believe it, try it.

We took a run up the road last week to the soldiers' reunion near Austin, and found a perfect jam of people in a splendid grove for such a gathering. We met the old veterans Pate Lynn and Uncle Jerry Brown, the post commander and adjutant of Stambaugh Post, and many other comrades to numerous to mention individually. Capt. Henry, state commander last year, was the presiding officer and in this line he is a model. He always knows just what to do and how and when. His voice is clear and strong enough to be heard by everybody and when he is on the rostrum he stays there and keeps things moving for the intellectual entertainment of the people and lets the other officers look after the camp. We enjoyed our short visit with the old comrades very much and were highly gratified at the reception we met after our part of the exercises were completed. Every body seemed to enjoy themselves to the top of their bent and there seemed to be thousands of people on the grounds.

A BIG BLAZE. AND A BIGGER LOSS.

E. C. Lemar's Big Flouring Mill Goes up in Smoke—Thousands of Bushels of Wheat, Corn and other Grain and Hundreds of Barrels of Flour Consumed.

About 4 o'clock Monday morning last, an alarm of fire startled our citizens out of their morning sleep, to soon discover Lemar's big mill on fire. In a short time the entire building was a solid mass of flames and it was plain to see that the whole structure was doomed.

Along in the year 1881, Mr. R. T. Young, father-in-law to Mr. Lemar, built the original structure and called it the Farmers Mills. Some years afterwards Mr. S. C. Lemar bought Mr. Young's interest and began the milling business in our city. He has added to and improved the original plant until he had invested about $25,000 or more in building and improvements, besides grain and finished products of the mill which amounted to nearly or quite as much more.

It has been estimated that Mr. Lemar's loss will run up near the $50,000 mark. His insurance will not exceed $15,000. The regret at the loss is universal and the whole community express their sympathy for Mr. Lemar in his great loss and calamity.

We believe it is an universal trait of better humanity to wish a man well who has built up a good business from small beginnings. When such a man loses the result of his years of toil and energy, the whole community feels the shock and regrets the loss not only to the community, but to the individual. We trust Mr. Lemar will rebuild and continue in the business. He has made it a success and we hope he will renew his efforts and make it even a greater success.

Griffith-Reavley.

The friends of Lawrence M. Griffith and Miss Hannah Reavley were not surprised at the announcement of their marriage on last Sunday, Sept. 1, at the home of the bride's parents at Nevada. The event has been expected for some time and everyone who knows them wishes them all the happiness there is in wedded bliss.

Mr. Griffith is one of our successful young business men whose life has been characterized by a steady adherence to correct business principles and hence has accumulated some means as well as built up an excellent reputation for business sagacity and good judgment.

If there was further need of proof of his sagacity and good judgment, his choice of a bride is amply sufficient. She is well known in Rich Hill, having grown from childhood to lovely womanhood in our midst. With the good judgment these two have manifested in the choice of partners for life, there will doubtless be all the success their host of friends wish for them. The best wishes of THE TRIBUNE will follow them in their new venture.

MINERS RETURN TO WORK. Trouble With Four Kansas Companies Referred to National Board.

The following was published in the Globe Democrat of yesterday morning from Pittsburg, Kan., as a special dispatch:

"September 1 has passed, and the district union contract has gone into effect, being signed by all the coal companies in the district with the exception of the Big Four. President Richardson, of district No. 141, United Mine Workers, has not ordered a strike against the above companies, and the entire matter has been referred to the national executive board.

"All the miners of the Cherokee district went to work this morning as if there had been no disturbance. The miners of the Big Four companies went to work upon a counter proposition recently made to the miners. The Big Four companies are making arrangements to meet any exigency, and men are being shipped in to run the mines in case of a strike. They are white miners from West Virginia. Several men have arrived at Yale to act as guards or special officers for the Western Coal and Mining company in case of trouble.

"There is a more hopeful feeling here now that the matter has gone to the national board. The future will be controlled by National President Mitchell, who is now at Wilkesbarre, Pa., settling the trouble in the Hazleton district with the anthracite miners. It was expected that he would come to Pittsburg after his visit to the east terminates."

We are heartily glad the threatened strike has been averted and that good hard American common sense prevails.

Our Public Schools.

Miss Maggie Embree was elected a substitute teacher by the school board at their meeting Tuesday evening. An addition was also made to the course of study in the high school by adding to the course book-keeping, commercial correspondence and elementary commercial law. This is an excellent move and should have the hearty approval of the patrons of our public schools. No young man or woman ever graduates from one of our business colleges but that when they begin the practical work of a business life they have to learn the business much the same as though they had never attended a business college. All they had learned was a theory taught by some one who had never had any business experience and knew little of practical business.

Our high school proposes to give our students just as good business theories as they can get elsewhere, and by a teacher who not only knows the theory but has had actual practical application of the theory and knows how it is done.

In this year when so many have been oppressed by the unusual heat it will be inspiring to know that as far back as 1816 there was a "year without a summer." It was referred to by the people of that age as the year "eighteen hundred and starve to death." That year the rays of the sun seemed to be destitute of heat. The cause was not attributed to sun spots but that the "sun was giving out." People talked just as much then of the cause as they have recently of the cause of the extreme heat. The corn was killed in the fields and preparation was made for another crop; ice formed in June to a thickness of a half inch. July was accompanied by frost and ice. What little corn ripened in uncropped parts of the habitable United States was sold at $5 per bushel for seed in 1817. Flour sold for $13 per barrel.—Live Stock Indicator.

He had been down in Barton county to see his father, Uncle John Kiou, who is and has been for some time quite sick, but is now thought to be improving. Mr. Kiou is now on his way back to Boise City, Idaho, where he is engaged in business and will probably make that his permanent future home.

Solace.

The girl who loves to giggle
Irritates the passerby.
But she's infinitely better
Than the girl who loves to cry.
The man who loves to flatter
May play a scurvy trick.
But he's infinitely better
Than the man who loves to kick.
And so, throughout existence,
This comfort we may nurse,
There's nothing so unpleasant
But that it might be worse.

—Gus Kienberger, the erst-while correspondent of THE TRIBUNE at Papineville, has taken up a business course of study at Nevada, for the winter. We wish him success in his pursuit and the attainment of his business ambition.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Hines will be surprised to learn that they were on the train on the Great Northern railroad, when the fearful wreck occurred at Nyack, not far from Kallispell, near the end of their journey. Thirty-seven persons were killed and fourteen or more injured. The train was just passing over the mountains at Nyack, when some freight cars became loosened and went backward down the grade and crashed into the passenger train where Mr. and Mrs. Hines were, completely demolishing the rear coach, and piling up in a general wreck, caught fire. Fortunately the coach in which Mr. and Mrs. Hines were, though badly shaken up, was not seriously injured and the occupants all escaped alive with but slight bruises. They arrived safely at their journey's end, Aug. 31, at 2 o'clock in the morning, with the same train that took in the killed and wounded. It was a close call and the friends here are glad to learn of their safety. These facts are taken from a private letter from Mrs. Hines and is of course reliable. Missouri State Fair, Sedalia, Mo., $2.75 round trip; tickets on sale Sept. 8 to 12, final return limit Sept. 14, via Mo. Pac.
